Like many other companies around the world, Kaye Products is experiencing the impact of supply chain disruptions. The unpredictability of when we will receive raw materials, or the inability to obtain them at all, has led to our being out of stock on a number of items.

We have done our best to provide estimates of when products will become available, but in some cases, these estimates have not been met. We are providing estimated dates based on the information we get from our suppliers. Unfortunately, the delivery dates continue to be moved further into the future by the suppliers.

We apologize for the inconvenience this has cause some of our dealers and users of our products. We are doing all we can to replenish our stock and ship backordered items as quickly as possible.

We value the relationships we have with our dealers and the people who depend on our products in their daily lives. We are doing everything possible to return to our normal shipping times.

Regards,

David Dillon
President
